Benefits Of Saudi's Premium Residency

Self-Sponsored Residency

Premium Residency holders can live in Saudi Arabia without requiring a local sponsor. They are not tied to a specific employer for visa status, which provides greater independence, flexibility, and long-term security.

Freedom To Work

Holders can work in the private sector and change jobs freely without needing employer approval. This mobility creates better career opportunities, and eligible family members are also permitted to work legally.

Business Ownership

Premium Residency allows full ownership and operation of businesses in most sectors. No Saudi partner is required in many industries, and residents can invest broadly under Saudi investment regulations.

Unrestricted Property Ownership

Residents may purchase residential, commercial, and industrial real estate across Saudi, subject to special rules in Makkah and Madinah. In restricted zones, long-term usufruct rights are available, and property can be registered in the resident's name.

Family Inclusion

Holders can sponsor their spouse, children, and parents under their residency. Dependents receive legal residency status and can access education, healthcare, and employment opportunities in accordance with Saudi regulations.

Visa-Free Travel

Premium Residency permits entry and exit from Saudi without re-entry visas, providing travel flexibility for business and personal needs. There is no need for exit permits, and there is no minimum stay requirement to maintain residency status.

Airport Fast-Track

Residents can use designated lanes similar to Saudi citizens at airports and border crossings, enhancing their travel experience. This ensures faster immigration processing, smoother arrivals and departures, and reduced travel-related delays.

No Expat Fees

Holders are exempt from most expatriate levies, including dependent fees and certain recurring residency charges. This significantly reduces long-term living costs and makes relocation more financially attractive for families and investors.
